MISA/SAGIA Investment License

To establish any type of business in Saudi Arabia, foreign companies must first obtain an investment license from the Ministry of Investment (MISA), as required by the Foreign Investment Regulations.

There are various types of investment licenses in Saudi Arabia, depending on the business activity a foreign company plans to conduct. The most common types include Industrial, Service, Professional, and Commercial (for wholesale and retail trade). Each license caters to specific business sectors and activities within the Kingdom.

Subsidiary Company

To start a business in Saudi Arabia, a foreign company must establish a subsidiary and obtain an investment license from the MISA. A subsidiary is a separate legal entity where the controlling interest is either fully or partially held by the foreign parent company.

Unlike a branch office, a subsidiary is treated as a new business in the country, allowing greater operational flexibility.
